Next to a stack of golden grain in the fields or a tree loaded with fruit, a farmer's proudest possession is his stock of U. S. Savings Bonds. These bonds enable him to oil up his financial machinery and maintain a reserve which insures his home, land, livestock and equipment. His future is secure. The wise farmer builds his financial reserve in Savings Bonds from profits when his crops are good. That reserve is the windbreak against a stormy period. And it grows, 34 for every 25 invested in ten years.

SEASONAL CHANGES IN MILK PRODUCTION AFFECT MARKETING

Milk production for many city markets has a much greater seasonal fluctuation than it did in the late thirties, reports M. C. Conner, agricultural economist for the Virginia Experiment Station.

Cooperating in a study involving 13 northeastern states, Conner also has found that the total amount of milk delivered per farm has increased considerably since 1936 — indicating that most farms have increased the size of their dairy business.

Other observations:

The last ten years have seen a significant decline in the number of producer - distributors. In the markets studied about 1-3 to 1-2 of the current producers have started dairying during the last 10 years either by buying established dairies, or starting new ones. This means about 1-3 to 1-2 of the dairymen on the market 10 years ago have gone out of business.

Conner explains that the study, mainly on pricing of milk and milk products, should enable the researchers to analyze data as to its economic impact on the milk industry, and to describe the structure of the governmental mechanism for pricing milk.

He says until 1940 the base allotment plan seems to have been effective in maintaining even milk production throughout the year. Since that time, the small amount of surplus milk and the resultant changes in marketing arrangements have rendered the base largely ineffective...hence the greater seasonal fluctuation.

Commission Studies Ways To Get Coal

The Virginia Emergency Fuel Commission has urged every coal user in the state to make all possible efforts to conserve the vital fuel.

"If present stocks of coal are used as sparingly as possible," the Commission said, "a grave crisis may be averted in the weeks and months ahead."

The three-man commission, headed by State Highway Commissioner James A. Anderson, was set up by Governor Tuck to handle the emergency created by the current shutdown of union coal mines.

"While we do not wish to alarm anyone," Anderson said, "the Commission does feel that this situation is very grave. Conservation is the order of the day."

Serving as commission members are John Q. Rhodes, Jr., State Unemployment Compensation Commissioner, and W. H. Mickels, Jr., member of the State Industrial Commission.

The Commission said it, of course, has no idea as to how long the strike may last. If it lingers into weeks or months, "widespread human misery and suffering will result unless immediate steps are taken to make certain that essential needs can be met."

The Commission itself took prompt action to meet the impending shortage shortly after the body was activated on September 28 by executive order of the Governor.

It launched a detailed inventory of existing supplies and prospective demand; it announced that arrangements are being made for the state to purchase "up to 50,000 tons of coal as an initial reserve stockpile;" and it indicated that still other stocks of coal can be obtained.

In another action, the Commission established local emergency fuel committees in every county and municipality. It urged all coal dealers and all coal users to work closely with these local groups.

Undefeated A. H. S. Faces Kenbridge

The Appomattox High School football team, winners of 3 straight games, is scheduled to meet the Kenbridge High School eleven here Friday night at Lee Park.

The team has been getting in a chore of practice this week in preparation for Friday's tilt.

Last Friday afternoon, A. H. S. journeyed to Charlotte Court House, and won a 20 to 0 victory over the Randolph-Henry High School.

The high-scoring local squad has run up an imposing record in its first three games, scoring 28-0, 58-0 and 20-0 decisions over Presbyterian Orphanage, Brookville and Randolph-Henry.

Claim History Weakness Of Va. Schools

Richmond, Oct. 5.- A legislative study commission reported to Governor Tuck that "most of the graduates of our high schools are woefully uninformed of the facts of Virginia history, government and geography."

The report of the seven-member group, of which Senator Lloyd C. Bird of Chesterfield was chairman, was made pursuant to a resolution of the 1948 General Assembly calling for a study of the textbooks and other materials used in the history and government curricula of the secondary schools, with particular reference to how the history of Virginia is being taught and how this is being correlated with history and government in general.

The Commission said that " early because evident that Virginia history and government, as such, are not actually being taught in our schools." It noted that Section 688 of the Code of Virginia calls for the teaching of Virginia history in the elementagy grades and requires a course of study in the high schools to include "the teaching of the Declaration of American Independence, the Virginia Statutes of Religious Freedom, the Virginia Bill of Rights and Section 58 of the Constitution of Virginia." Wit hreference to this mandate, the Commission said:

". . . These requirements have not been met. An analysis of texts, conferences with teachers, answers to questionnaires, and a review of examinations given high school students convince this Commission that the mandate of Section 688 has not been carried out by the State Board of Education.

"The answers of college freshmen to the questionnatre reveal deplorable ignorance of the cardinal facts of Virginia history. It should be pointed out here that only 10.2 per cent identified the author of the Virginia Bill of Rights and only 12 per cent credited Richard Henry Lee with having proposed independence for the Colonies; yet the Virginia Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence are documents required by law to be taught."

To Make Plans For Dedication McLean House

There will be a meeting Saturday morning of the executive committee charged with over-all direction of the dedication of the rebuilt McLean House at Old Appomattox Court House. Tentative plans call for the dedication to take place on the 85th anniversary of the peace at Appomattox made in April, 1865, ending the War Between the States.

April 9, 1950 comes on a Sunday, and the committee may decide on some other date in April for the dedication.

Another matter of prime importance is that of furnishing the famous building, which has recently been rebuilt on its original lines by the National Park Service.

Thus far little progress has been made. However, some articles are being made available. Among them:

A period grandfather's clock, loaned to the Park Service by Mr. Elwood Inge, of Richmond. The clock is said to have originally belonged to the famous Jo Sweeney, and to have been used in the McLean House during the occupancy of the Ragland family just after the war.

Another item on hand is a pier table, with dragon-head legs and a mirrored lower shelf, given by the Mount Vernon Society, which group has also sent a handsome mantle gilted mirror.

It is highly desirable that any individual or group knowing of furniture items which might properly go into the McLean House should contact Mr. Gurney, Park Superintendent at once. Original pieces are most highly desired, but items of the 1860-65 period will also be used.

Lynchburg Antiquarian Group Here

About twenty-five members of the Antiquarian Society of Lynchburg visited the rebuilt McLean House at Old Appomattox yesterday afternoon. They were shown through the building and grounds by H. A. Gurney, Park Superintendent.

The Society has expressed keen interest in the furnishing of the famous "peace" house, and may be of valuable assistance in this important project.
